The Creation of the CONSORT Statement and its Impact on the Reporting of Randomized Control Trials

Abstract: This talk investigates the history of randomized control trial reporting and the impact of the Cochrane Collaboration. I will also explore the creation of the CONSORT statement and discuss its impact on the reporting of randomized control trials since its creation. Also, I'll discuss the findings and results of a systematic review that was conducted by former co-workers and myself which help address this question. Finally, I will discuss how systematic reviews can be an insightful tool in gathering information on specific topics and how their results can be used to conduct further studies.
